

TENURE-TRACK FACULTY POSITION ECONOMICS - Undergraduate Programs

IE University's Economics Department seeks qualified applicants for tenure-track faculty positions in Economics for its undergraduate programs, starting September 2019.

The best-suited candidates should be interested in research in the areas of empirical microeconomics, with a particular focus on public economics, labor economics, family economics or health economics.

They will have the ability to publish in top-tier peer-reviewed international journals, to teach core and elective undergraduate level courses, to interact and work closely with faculty from other disciplines, and to provide intellectual leadership in the area.

A PhD degree from a recognized school in a relevant discipline (entry-level candidates can be close to completion) is required. For all positions, proficiency in Spanish is a plus, but not required. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

IE University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and strongly encourages applications from individuals who will expand the ethnic and gender diversity of our faculty.

Applications should include a cover letter and vita, a one-page research statement, a statement of teaching philosophy, copies of recent publications, contact information for three references, and evidence of teaching excellence (e.g., teaching evaluations). Short listed candidates will be asked to provide reference letters.

We will be holding interviews at the Simposio de la Asociación Española de Economía (SAEe) Madrid, Spain, 13-15 Dec 2018. To be considered for an interview slot, please submit your application in electronic form with the subject heading Econ Undergrad IE University. The search will continue until the position is filled. We will receive applications until November 30, 2018.
